Academics

Education is a continuous roadway of knowledge that waits to be conquered by delving individuals. As the teachers of FCHS daily construct the pavement of this circuit, students may be transported through communities of chemical equations; they travel into cities of historical facts; or they are left alone to ponder over a perplexing math problem.

Most high school students move along their journey with graduation set before them as a destination. The faculty of FCHS places before the students an ever widening route of knowledge to be visited.

FCHS Administration Experienced

Ray Hollandsworth, Principal, keeps FCHS functioning on a smooth basis.

Floyd County School Board: Mr. R.O. Slusher, Chairman; Mrs. Mildred Thompson, Clerk of the Board; Mr. Rex Nixon, Mr. Benton Alderman, Mr. Alonzo Monday, Superintendent; Mr. B.P. Simpson, Vice-chairman; Mr. Marvin Cole, Mr. Gerald Phillips.

Mrs. Lorice O'Connor, School Receptionist and Bookkeeper, daily faces the large load of work an efficiently run school presents.

Guides Along Roads Of Higher Education

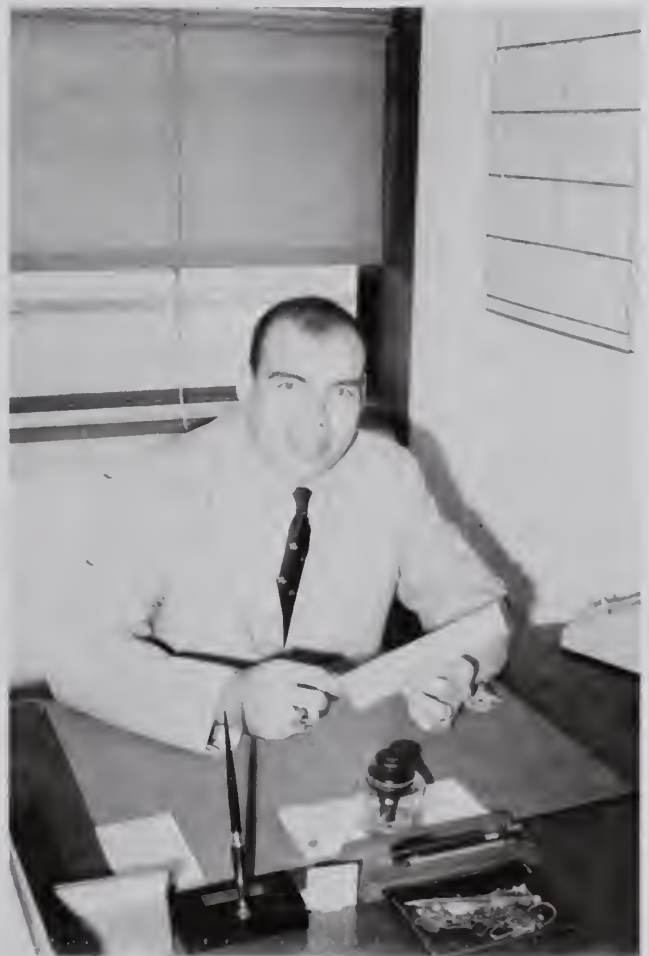

Principal Ray Hollandsworth leads the efficient and dedicated group of school administrators. The Assistant Principal, Mr. Robert Peak, carries out the discipline problems, while Mrs. Poff and Mrs. O'Connor complete the small crew in their role as secretaries.

Civic minded School Board members and County School Superintendent Mr. Alonzo Monday work to keep FCHS on a higher path of education.

Mrs. Iris Poff, Secretary of the Principal, spends many hours a day to see that school happenings are recorded.

Assistant Principal Mr. Robert Peak takes a moment from disciplinary duties to prepare the attendance record.

Classes in Karate have prepared Mrs. Joyce Pugh to deal with unruly pupils. Here she and Allen Smith demonstrate.

Teachers' Moods Captured By Camera Lens

The ability to perform well on the trampoline is a natural skill of Physical Education teacher Mrs. Burkett.

There is another view of the poised, self-assured teacher who instigates student participation each day. The second view catches the teacher in emotions such as happiness, sorrow, and occasional disgust with the errant or indifferent student.

This view takes us out of the classrooms into the bustling of extra-curricular activities as the faculty enters into the problems of the teen-age world to supervise a club meeting or chaperone a dance.

School librarian Mrs. Mary Murrie is not affected by the desperate pleading of a new Library Club member.

Informal teaching stances characterize history instructors Mr. Rudolph Marshall and Mr. John Harmon.

Eighth-graders bring Assistant Principal Mr. Robert Peak to trial in performance of their magazine skit.

Electric IBM typewriters for advanced typists, transcribing, bookkeeping machines for students bound for the business world . . . all are typical of the business department.

General subjects such as typing, General Business, and Record Keeping pave the way for a more intricate study in the world of Second Year Shorthand and Typing. Each individual is given a chance to prepare for a business career.

Daily problems and time writings develop the skill and speed of students in Personal Typing.

Learning the principles of office practice, Patty Kemp manipulates a transcribing machine.

Ambition And Talent And Fine Arts Students

New drill routines practiced for the upcoming football game, artistic skills developed through molding clay images, a variety of songs being prepared for the annual Christmas assembly... All are characteristic of the Fine Arts Department.

A trio of new teachers guide the students in developing their talents and ambitions and in appreciating the beauty of both music and art.

Performing with competence, students win approval from their teachers.

Miss Vaughan joins with her Art II class in working with abstract pottery.

French Course Added To Foreign Languages

The streets of Paris come alive daily in room 102 where Miss Slusher holds her French class. A new course, French will become a two year study for college bound students and those who just wish to learn the language.

Down the hall another foreign language transmits students to Ancient Rome as Latin pupils study noun declensions and verb conjugation. For the more advanced Latin II scholars an account of Caesar's Gaul Conquest is to be translated.

"Sock it to me" in French is only one of many phrases these students have translated.

Five Year English Course, A State Requirement

Junior English students prepare to take notes from an ETV program on Literature.

Remedial reading, dramatics, and journalism are three elective courses of the English curriculum. Students also acquire knowledge of grammar and literature through a five year study program.

Remedial reading aids many students in overcoming verbal difficulties. Dramatics students use the auditorium to gain the "feel" of acting. Students of journalism learn the various aspects of reporting and editing. Through Educational Television students are introduced to new concepts of phonetics.

Using the body to express emotion is easier when facial expressions are hidden, as shown by these Drama Students.

World Of Polygonal Figures, Algebraic Terms

To compute quickly, to reason logically, to solve accurately—these are qualities that each student of mathematics develops. Students begin with basic numerical problems that they may confront in daily life and advance to the more difficult problems of logarithms, quadratic equations, and probability.

Students are offered several courses in mathematics ranging from Math I and II, courses in basic arithmetic, to Advanced Math, a college preparatory course.

Under the direction of Mrs. Peak, Eighth Grade Math problems become more challenging.

Math students listen closely to the explanation given by Mrs. Harman, so that they will be able to work the problems accurately.

Regular Physical Education classes also continued; boys and girls in the eighth, ninth, and tenth grades strengthened their bodies and minds through exercises and sports three days a week. Courses in first-aid, health, and driver's education supplemented the instruction.

Of The Science Student's World

Dissecting pans, chemical equations . . . both are well known to students of science. This course begins in the Eighth-Grade with a complete study of General Science.

In Biology, students learn the composition of plant life as well as of animal life. Through dissection of frogs and crayfish the parts of the body are learned.

For students who plan to attend college, Anatomy, Chemistry, and Physics are offered. If so desiring, a student can take a full five year course of Science.

One of the many things learned in the one year Physics course is the use of the inclined plane.

Eternal Chain Of Events, People Parade

Was America once part of the Asian continent? Who was the aggressive force in the Mexican War? Is today's Electoral College outdated? These are a few of the baffling questions that confront students of history.

Turning the pages of world history, Ninth and Tenth graders study the conflicts, triumphs, and defeats of man. Junior students recreate through imagination the clash of arms in the Revolutionary War. Seniors struggle with the ideals of a democratic nation.

Sophomores are introduced to a world of civics through long sessions of lecture.

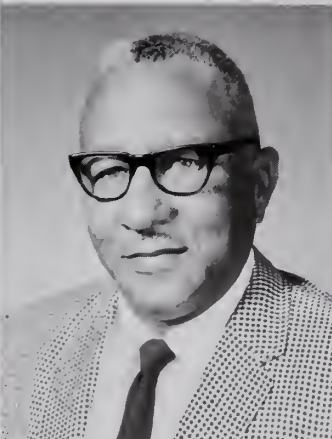

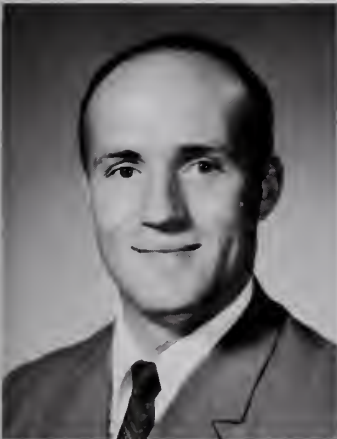

Juniors view launching pads and space ships in studying one aspect of United States History—outer space exploration.

Offer Training In Vocational Careers

Shop days in Agriculture teach boys how to use mechanical tools, and the parts of machinery, such as this tractor motor.

Pride in accomplishment, satisfaction in performance characterize the students who for the first time may complete a dress, a judging contest, or a welding project.

Vocational skills received from home economic courses, agricultural training, and industrial arts prepare students planning to pursue careers directly after high school. With modern ideas and acquired knowledge, they accept the challenges of the vocational world.

Mr. Jennings encourages Vocational students to think for themselves and to produce their ideas in class discussions.

Before actual work on Industrial Arts projects is begun, pupils must see that their planning is accurate.

Guidance Department Begins A Path Of Higher Goals

A friendly smile and a willingness to help bring many students to the door of Miss Dobyns, Eighth and Ninth Grade counselor.

Situated on the bustling first floor, the guidance department is unique to all students. To underclassmen, the counselors may offer professional advice as to what high school courses will be most lucrative. Seeking information on trade schools or preparing for college boards, Juniors and Seniors often seek refuge in the solitude of the department.

College materials and experience enable the guidance department to aid college-bound Seniors.

Classes

Walking into FCHS at 8:30 a.m., one might find that all is quiet, almost a ghostly quiet. But when the 8:45 bell rings the halls fill once more with the shouts of nearly 900 students.

The sounds gradually change from hall chatter to classroom participation. Facial expressions betray the pupil's inner emotions—the wrinkled brow, or questioning eyes. It is here that creative ideas are developed into worthwhile occupations.

Seniors Prove Leaders In Various Activities

As eighth-graders, 202 members of the class of '69 were greeted with warmth and friendliness as they passed through the doors of Floyd County High School. Although they were bewildered at the size of the new school and the many new faces, they soon became adjusted to high school life. There was much to look forward to in the coming four years.

During their freshmen year, the class became more acquainted with the school, the faculty, and the students. Long lasting friendships were developing.

The halfway mark was reached in the sophomore year. Courses were selected which would provide for a certain field of study and preparations for the future were being made.

In the fall of '67 thirty-five juniors gained recognition for their academic excellence by being tapped into the Beta Club. Spring drew near and the cafeteria was converted, by junior decorators, into a land of "Moonlight And Roses" for the prom.

The senior year began with 134 members. Then tragedy took one and a pall settled on the class. But it was a time to be proud, and the class reflected on the good things of the past five years. Friendships had been built, values of life had been attained. The seniors had become individuals of purpose.

Class Presidents Linda Spence, Kenneth Pauley, Sarah King, Lyle Wimmer, and Dicky Palmer had led the class of '69 through a successful high school career.

24 Credits Needed For Distant Graduation

"Here Comes the Judge" as Eighth-Graders sentence students who failed to buy magazines from fellow class members.

Athletics

At Mid-August the path of sports is once again put into use. As boys trudge down this road of late practice and strenuous exercise, new football plays are completed. Fall does not last long, however, and the gridiron is deserted for the high school gym. A hope for district championship drives each player down a path of determination.

By the end of May when spring sports such as track, baseball, and tennis have been completed, the sports path has been welltrodden. All summer boys come and go, realizing that for better teams next year, practice must be constant.

PATHWAYS 69

Buffalo Phil Mannon crouches and waits for the upcoming signal.

A groan of pain, a grimace of soreness—both familiar sounds during the first few days of football practice. After weeks of training and several games behind them, players found that their sore muscles had loosened.

In his second year at FCHS, Coach Bill Burkett brought the team to its highest standing in five years. Three wins kept the Buffaloes in high spirits.

Ready line-backers move into the action of the third quarter.

Once Again Mid-August Finds Players Training

J.V.'s Begin Season With High Hopes . . .

A wary Buffalo seeks an opening to work in his advantage.

"One, two, three, four. One, two, three, four," became a steady rhythm from the high school athletic field. J.V. Cagers became accustomed to long hours of practice. Mimeographed copies of plays were memorized and put into action on the gridiron.

After the conclusion of J.V. season, several of the boys moved up to the rank of Varsity players, where new techniques were learned. It is by this promotion that next year's team is constructed.

Fourteen Energetic Girls Compose Two

Alternate C. Poff must be able to substitute for any missing cheerleader.

On a cold December afternoon FCHS's cheerleaders took part in the annual Christmas Parade.

"Soul team, sock it to 'em now." With the sportsmen moving into the new District Nine, the Varsity Cheerleaders began another year of leading the crowds at invigorating games.

Jumping high into the crisp autumn air to acclaim possession of the pigskin, the pep girls executed formation yells to promote touchdown drives. As the fall season turned into winter, they moved indoors where the swish of the ball in the basket dominated the sports' world.

Seven girls in flashing black and gold uniforms lead the crowds at underclassmen athletic competition. Six freshmen dominate this year's squad, whose purpose is to provide the experience needed as future varsity cheerleaders.

Cheering only at home games, the J.V.'s execute sharp straight motion yells to proclaim to the Baby Buffalo fans a certain victory. Roaring up crowd steam to promote team morale, these spunky girls add jest to the FCHS sports world.

Now a Varsity Cheerleader, M. Thompson has come up through the ranks, having been a J. V. two years.

Blocking presented by Independence players does not hinder P. Stuart's chance for 2 points.

Practice started in late spring in preparation for the distant season. As summer waned into fall, position drills and rebound attempts became precision timed.

Finally the long-awaited first game arrived and the Buffs came away with a 72-47 win. The season progressed, proving to be the best in five years, as victory succeeded victory. As this book went to press, hopes of district championship were bright and morale high, as the Buffaloes held a 13-4 record.

J.V. player C. Bond (33) defies blocking to score on the home-court.

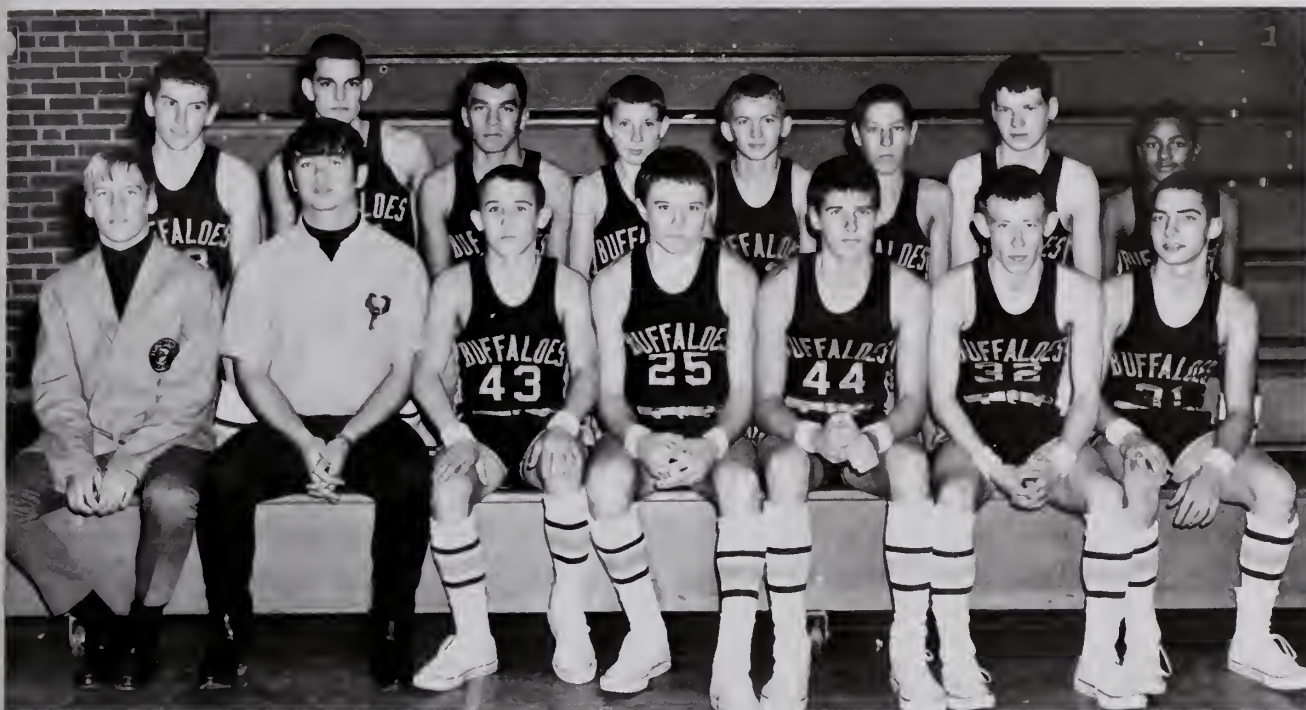

Coach Del Smith's J.V. team learned more than the passing, dribbling, and shooting of the basketball. This hardcourt activity trained the boys to think quickly, often having to make snap decisions, to co-operate with team mates, and to show at all times the quality of good sportsmanship.

A J.V. player must never allow his body to get out of shape, but must constantly train for his future as a Varsity player. Knowledge gained in lower ranks will carry him on.

Fifteen energetic Eighth-Graders composed the Baby Buffalo squad after try-outs determined those boys with the most ability and the most willing to work.

With only one loss, the Eighth-Grade team boasts the best record of the district. Under the skillful coaching of Bill Burkett, the boys learned the fundamentals of the hardcourt sport as well as team co-operation and good sportsmanship.

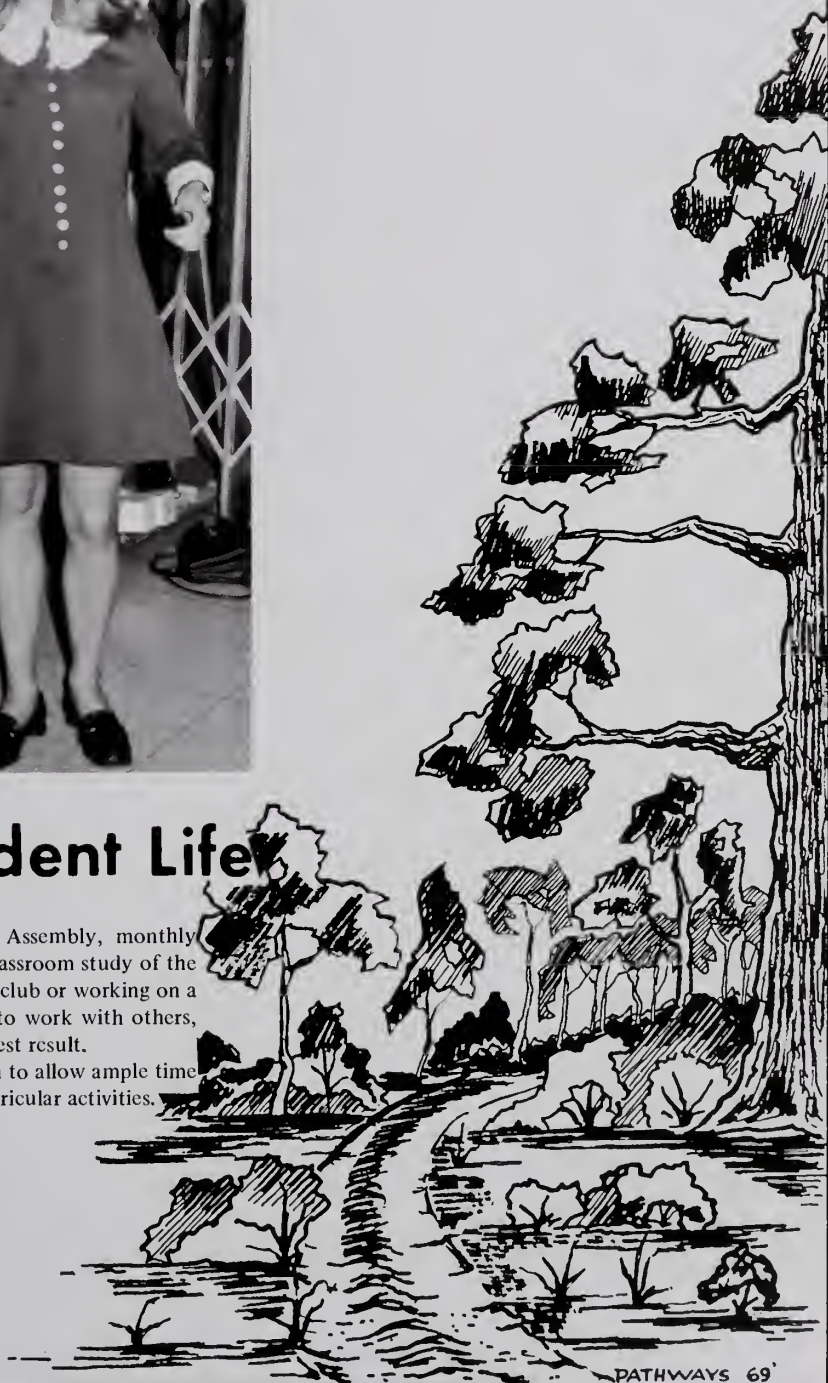

The young cagers perfected plays and drills that will later aid them as J.V. and Varsity players.

Student Life

The Homecoming Dance, the Madonna Assembly, monthly club meetings . . . all combine to add to the classroom study of the high school student. Serving as an officer of a club or working on a dance committee provides the opportunity to work with others, combining a multitude of ideas to reach the best result.

From work in club activities students learn to allow ample time for homework and yet participate in extra-curricular activities.

Honors Bestowed On FCHS Students Range

Enthusiasm combined with long hours of work result in achieving excellence in various fields of school work. Athletic awards are given, for the most part, but the all district football team was named in late fall.

Awards are given in the different academic departments; the math award, the English award, and state FFA and FHA degrees.

Others include honors for character and citizenship. The presentation of awards climax the varied aspect of school life as well as student effort.

Goal Of Magazine Campaign Exceeded By $300

The magazine campaign, under the direction of Mrs. Radford, started with the traditional class skits. Views from military stiffness to hippie freedom set the pace as the class competition began.

For two weeks students worked to receive the awards of the daily high-salesmen. The eighth graders proved to be the most outstanding by surpassing the sales of the upper classes.

After extending the campaign for three days, FCHS achieved its goal of $4200.

What better way to begin a homecoming than with a pep rally. The October air had not yet turned chilly and the students poured out the school doors to join in with the cheerleaders in rallying the team to victory. A brief show was presented by the band, and a surprise to all was the honorary coronation of football captains to queens.

Later that night the Buffaloes trounced Fries, winning the Homecoming game for the first time in four years. Nadean Duncan was crowned Queen and presided over the dance that followed.

Queen Nadean Duncan had trouble keeping the crown on, so her escort Larry Hatcher carried it as they led Mr. Hollandsworth and Mr. Whitlock off the field.

Chosen from the Senior class, the Madonna candidates must possess foremost personalities and respectable, religious characters. The faculty at FCHS selects five girls on which the Seniors vote to determine the Madonna and the Angel.

On the final day at school before Christmas vacation, the student body assembles in the auditorium to discover the identity of the girls. Accompanied by a narrator and the choir, they convey the true Christmas spirit.

Wesley Starkey conveys the Christmas story as silent students await the appearance of the Madonna and the Angel.

Of Madonna, Gaiety Of Snow Queen

Crowds looking anxiously ahead moved aside as the 1968 Christmas parade began. Convertibles decked with multicolored streamers and bands clicking their feet to the rhythm of the music proceeded the float of honor. On entry 38, sponsored by the Beta Club, five winter beauties sat amid tissue paper snow and bright evergreens. The Snow Queen and her court, selections of the Senior and Junior classes at FCHS, waved to familiar crowds and wore smiles typical of the holiday cheer.

A laugh-in? Mr. Ellwanger gives the cue for a faculty performance at the Christmas party. Wonder what song this group is going to sing?

Turn around Ellen. You're going the wrong way! What would a parade be without a band, and what would a band be without majorettes. Head majorette Linda Spence leads her crew up main street.

The main attraction of the Christmas Parade is the Snow Queen and her Court. Representatives of the Junior class were K. Quesenberry and J. Nixon. From the Senior class attendants were D. Goad and K. Spence and Queen V. Stuphin.

Government Forum For 900 Members

The Student Cooperative Association is a body of individuals representing those who attend FCHS. With its main objective to maintain a successful medium between the faculty and students, this group sponsors various activities during the year. Four sock hops, the Christmas assembly, and locker inspections are three of the chief projects listed on the organization's agenda.

SCA members discuss both the students' and faculty's points of view at their monthly meetings.

One of the many duties of homeroom representatives is to keep records of their class's part in magazine sales. Distribution of "pet prizes" was the climax of their work.

One Senior To Club Roll

"For leadership, loyalty, and truth..." The FCHS branch of the National Beta Club sings this pledge at each meeting. The organization is composed of juniors and seniors of excellent character, achievement, and attitude who have maintained a ninety or above average in school.

Presenting welfare baskets to people in the community during Christmas, representing FCHS at Classroom Kwiz, and selling dish clothes and sponges are jobs that keep each member active.

The Beta Club is responsible each year for making the Snow Queen's float. This year a new design was used, created by talented and industrious Beta members.

"Eye-Catching" Articles Aim Of Crier Staff

County Crier journalists contribute study hall hours, precious lunchtime, and after school moments to the writing of lively newspaper articles. Often confronted with the task of editing "dull" copy, the paper staff relies on significant quotes and versatility to assist them in creating original features.

Working to keep their rank as SIPA and VHSL trophy winners, five girls and twelve boys mix sparkle with timely topics to produce the Crier.

How good are our advertising sales? Staffers D. King, and W. Beale study advertisers list.

Feature editors V. Hylton, S. Hollandsworth, and C. Donahue join associate editors J. Quesenberry and I. Agnew in organizing a paper.

Scops Staff Work To Meet Bi-annual Deadlines

White ink, black paper, sore fingers, and confusion all jell at the last moment to form the staff of the Highland Scops. The seventeen members work unceasingly to bring two magazines a year.

Always searching for improvement, the staff prizes itself in adding new dimensions to each edition it prints. More photography, improved art work, added features, and a wider variety in poetry are four new goals attained this year.

Amid Library cards and other items in the Library conference room, J. Whitlock and A. Peters typed the magazine articles.

L. Kesler, R. Thomas, R. Shclor, and C. Donahue plan the publicity campaign, which proved to be a great help to the Scops.

Combine to form PATHWAYS '69

The fifteen member Bison staff assembles in room 107 each day to carry out various assignments. As students group to perform their specific duties, the yearbook gradually takes form. Ideas scribbled down on scrap paper emerge into definite copy blocks; a small wheel turns numerous times to crop snapshots; class editors move about the school to identify student pictures.

Through the co-operation and work of each individual, vague ideas evolve into the Bison '69.

Hy-Y Present Thanksgiving Assembly

Representing the religious-minded young men at FCHS, the Hi-Y endeavors to promote Christian sportsmanship and character. The members annually attend district and state gatherings to exchange ideas with Hi-Yers from various schools.

The thirty-five boys in the organization work toward definite goals. This year they sold Christmas paper to finance presents sent to the patients at the Marion and South Western hospitals. The members also prepare bulletin boards each six weeks.

Films on the beauty and on the poverty of India highlighted two of the Senior Tri-Hy-Y meetings. Mrs. Roberta Hewett, who recently returned from a tour of India, presented an interesting program on that country's plight.

The district Tri-Hy-Y meeting was held at FCHS this year, adding still another project of the club.

Members of this club pledge themselves to "clean speech, sportsmanship, scholarship, and clean living" and try to promote this theme throughout the school.

Varsity Club Conducts Basketball Queen Reign

The purchase of a Buffalo head for the gym, new sports coats in school colors—both were firsts for the Varsity Club this year. Other projects were the election of the second Basketball Queen and the annual spring banquet.

Members of the Varsity Club are those boys who have received a letter for participation in the sports field. The boys are not only outstanding athletes, but possess the qualities of good sportsmanship, and an interest in school activities.

Sportsmen are awarded for their efforts at the spring banquet sponsored by the club.

These club members tend a planter of foreign and local vegetation. Plants slips from this group can be used for projects in the annual science fair.

FCHS students gain additional knowledge by banding together to form the Science Club. This group endeavors to provide extra opportunities for those individuals with special interests in this field.

One requirement of the organization is that members enter a project in the Science Fair. Programs often consist of talks on new advancements and research topics. Providing recreation and education, the club assists students in recognizing their scientific ability.

"FHA Challenges You", the Future Homemakers of America to make your money behave.

With this theme as their main 1968-69 objective, the county chapter members learned to develop wise spending habits and to evaluate the quality of products. Seeking to meet this goal, individuals selected activities to complete in conjunction with their group work. Interesting projects included the money involved in planning a hope chest and in making a useful wardrobe.

FTA Prepares Students For Rewarding

Club members K. Quesenberry, S. Hollandsworth, L. Williams, W. Naff, and E. Manning take advantage of the cokes offered at the December meeting of FTA.

The state FTA Convention was held in Roanoke on the 13th and 14th of December this year. Delegates were R. Yeatts, F. Slusher, and R. Hylton.

The FTA is in charge of one of the upstairs bulletin boards for the first semester. J. Stuart, and C. Stuart create a display expressing "Merry Christmas" from the club.

Occupations As Teachers

Future Teachers of America is an organization having the purpose of preparing students for the responsibilities of teaching. By stimulating interest through programs, the FTA encourages its members to enter some aspect of education.

Discussing solutions for classroom situations, sending a delegation to the state convention, and having guest speakers are FTA activities that keep each member aware of the club's goal.

In the fall the FBLA toured the Bank of Floyd. A spring field trip is also held each year.

The Future Business Leaders of America is a club open to students taking at least two courses in this field. Their chief project, conducting the March of Dimes campaign, provides experience for the responsibilities faced in the business world. The members work diligently, keeping in mind that their efforts will help less fortunate people.

The annual trip to observe Roanoke's business organizations aids in building efficient, confident business leaders.

Winners of the FBLA Spelling Contest are N. Duncan and S. Austin.

By aiding school officials and helping in various administrative areas, the sixty-four members of the Neighborhood Youth Corps fulfill individual goals. Affiliated with the United States Government and sponsored by the Floyd County School Board, the NYC guides students in obtaining a high school education. Under the leaderships of Mrs. Sally Dalton and Mrs. Elizabeth Eanes, members are encouraged to perform diligent work during their study halls and after school.

Christmas Talent Show Provides

One of the largest and the most active clubs of the school, the Library Aides perform such tasks as keeping shelves straightened and delivering overdue book notices. Students contribute their study hall periods to work at the organizational task of the library, leaving Mrs. Murrie free to aid individuals seeking help.

This year a Christmas Talent show was held for the first time. Winners ranged from guitar players to Baton twirlers, providing entertainment for the entire club.

The quiet atmosphere of the library is preserved, in part, by students on duty during study halls, who keep the room orderly.

. . . and the gaiety of the winter season.

With the advent of a new director, Mrs. Bonnie Sitz, the choral department underwent several changes. On formal occasions girls appeared in evening gowns and boys in suits.

The "Hallelujah Chorus" was presented, and received with great acclaim, for the first time at the American Education Week program in November.

Against the backdrop of a cathedral, the choral group sang of the Messiah's birth during the Christmas Assembly.

The annual spring concert climaxed the musical year.

Kneeling before football fans the FCHS band performs its rendition of the Alma Mater.

Add Spice To Marching Band Of FCHS

The stillness of the fall afternoon is broken by the steady beat of the bass drum, the shrill toot of a clarinet, as the band launches into another sixth period practice session in preparation for a Friday night football game.

Winter days find the band inside the auditorium practicing concerts or going over the music that will be used on the Christmas parade route.

Students prove their musical talents in annual try-outs resulting in new seating arrangements.

Sixth period finds the band members assembled and ready to begin practice in the auditorium.

Newly Costumed Majorettes Proudly

Floyd citizens watch director Ellwanger and drum major E. Shelor lead the FCHS band in the annual Christmas parade.

Even a director must have some relaxation. After the hectic Christmas season of parades and concerts Mr. Ellwanger finds relief at the faculty party.

Lead Band Over Parade Routes

Two Freshmen majorettes practice the routine to be later performed at a football game. The majority of the majorettes were freshmen this year.

Majorettes are not the only ones who must learn precise steps. The band has strenuous practice sessions to perfect their marching techniques.

FCHS band members step in precision time as they participate in the Homecoming Parade at Rural Retreat.

Of Keeping Virginia Green

"Keep Virginia Green" is the motto and the aim of this group of boys ranging from the tenth through twelfth grades. Much more than fire fighting is learned as proper conservation methods become known to these industrious students.

Annual field trips supply boys with the chance to acquire a knowledge of our state greenery. Divided into groups, this organization functions under the direction of student crew leaders.

Club members board the bus to leave for the annual KVG outing.

Offer Services To Student Body

At 3:05, along with other student drivers, G. Eanes is excused to prepare his bus for the route to Check.

The work of the county bus drivers is certainly anything but glamorous! This group of dedicated individuals must face the winter, sleet and snow, and the spring thaw with determination and stout chains.

More and more adults participate in the transportation system each year.

To supplement the staff of adult bus drivers, high school boys also take bus routes, leaving home early and returning late. Student drivers are also used in transporting ball teams and groups for special school activities.

Before leaving the school grounds, M. Davis checks to see that all passengers are seated.

Sponsor of the Parking Patrol Mr. Campbell confers with the two members, D. Mitchell and B. Simpson.

Cooks, Custodians Capably Serve FCHS

Along with her many other tasks, Janitoress became responsible this year for the laundering of athletic uniforms.

Long before students at FCHS arrive the cooks and custodians have begun their days work.

Preparing hot meals for the 900 member student body requires time and diligence, but this task is carried out remarkably by the efficient lunchroom staff. Three lunch groups are served daily, presenting numerous jobs for the workers to perform.

On duty all day, the janitors must remain after school to prepare for the next busy day. Without the aid of these capable staff members functions at FCHS would fail to run smoothly.

The many mechanical tasks at Floyd County High School are done capably by janitors L. Akers and J. Thomas.

Advertisers

A never ending pathway of Business associates, realizing that much trade comes from the high school student, contributes each year to school publications such as the yearbook and newspaper.

Contributions are made in other ways too as students hold after school jobs in stores, garages, and restaurants. Always finding time to express interest in the individual's activities, he encourages the student to strive for that one day when he too can take his place in the business world.

Mrs. Gardner.
The time has come for me to leave your classes. I will really miss you and your classes for seem like a mother to me and I will always remember and love you. Thank you for helping me so much. I know the things I have learned from you will help me in my future home. Thanks for all the advice, I will remember what you have said. I want you to come see Robert and me lots of times. Always remember me and may God be with you through the rest of your life.

With all my love

Pat Kiang

Mrs. Hardness,
 We have had some of the most delightful experiences of my high school years in your classroom. It has become very important to me, and I will miss it greatly. Thank you,
 Wanda Willis

And as one goes, we all go,
Plodding the seemingly endless path.
As one seeks to find,
We grope with him,
Bound by the pledge of the present
And the challenge of the beyond.

In a very good learning have enjoyed being I hope
a student of yours I hope learn several important things from you. The best of luck in the future.
Love,
Noble

To a very sweet teacher who has taught me alot of things that will make me a better homemaker. I have

William P. P.

There's snow on a mountain
And the sun can't melt it,
You're a good teacher
And you can't help it.
PAMELA

Mrs. Gardner,
I'm glad that I finally got a chance to take Home Ec. after five years. I know that the things I've learned this year will be of much help to me in the future.

I know I'll always remember 5th Period (and you probably will too) when all the Seniors did all their complaining.

Have a nice summer,
and best wishes always.
